GRAVITATIONAL MANIPULATOR

Almost a century ago, the Outlands were dangling on the edge of a cataclysmic energy crisis. Dr. Mary Somers, a charmingly eccentric astrophysicist, was hired to find a solution. Mary moved her family to the scientific research station on Olympus and set to work.

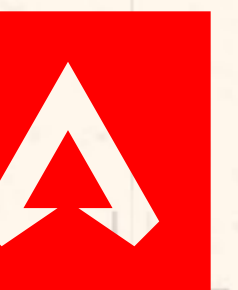

With the help of her apprentice, Dr. Reid, Mary discovered Branthium - an element she was convinced could be the key to limitless energy. But Branthium can be found only on the accretion disk of a black hole, so Mary and Dr. Reid departed on a dangerous mission to prove her theory right.

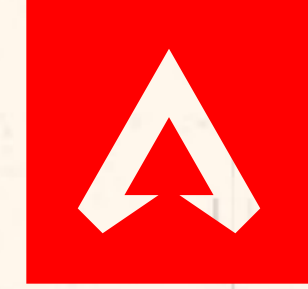

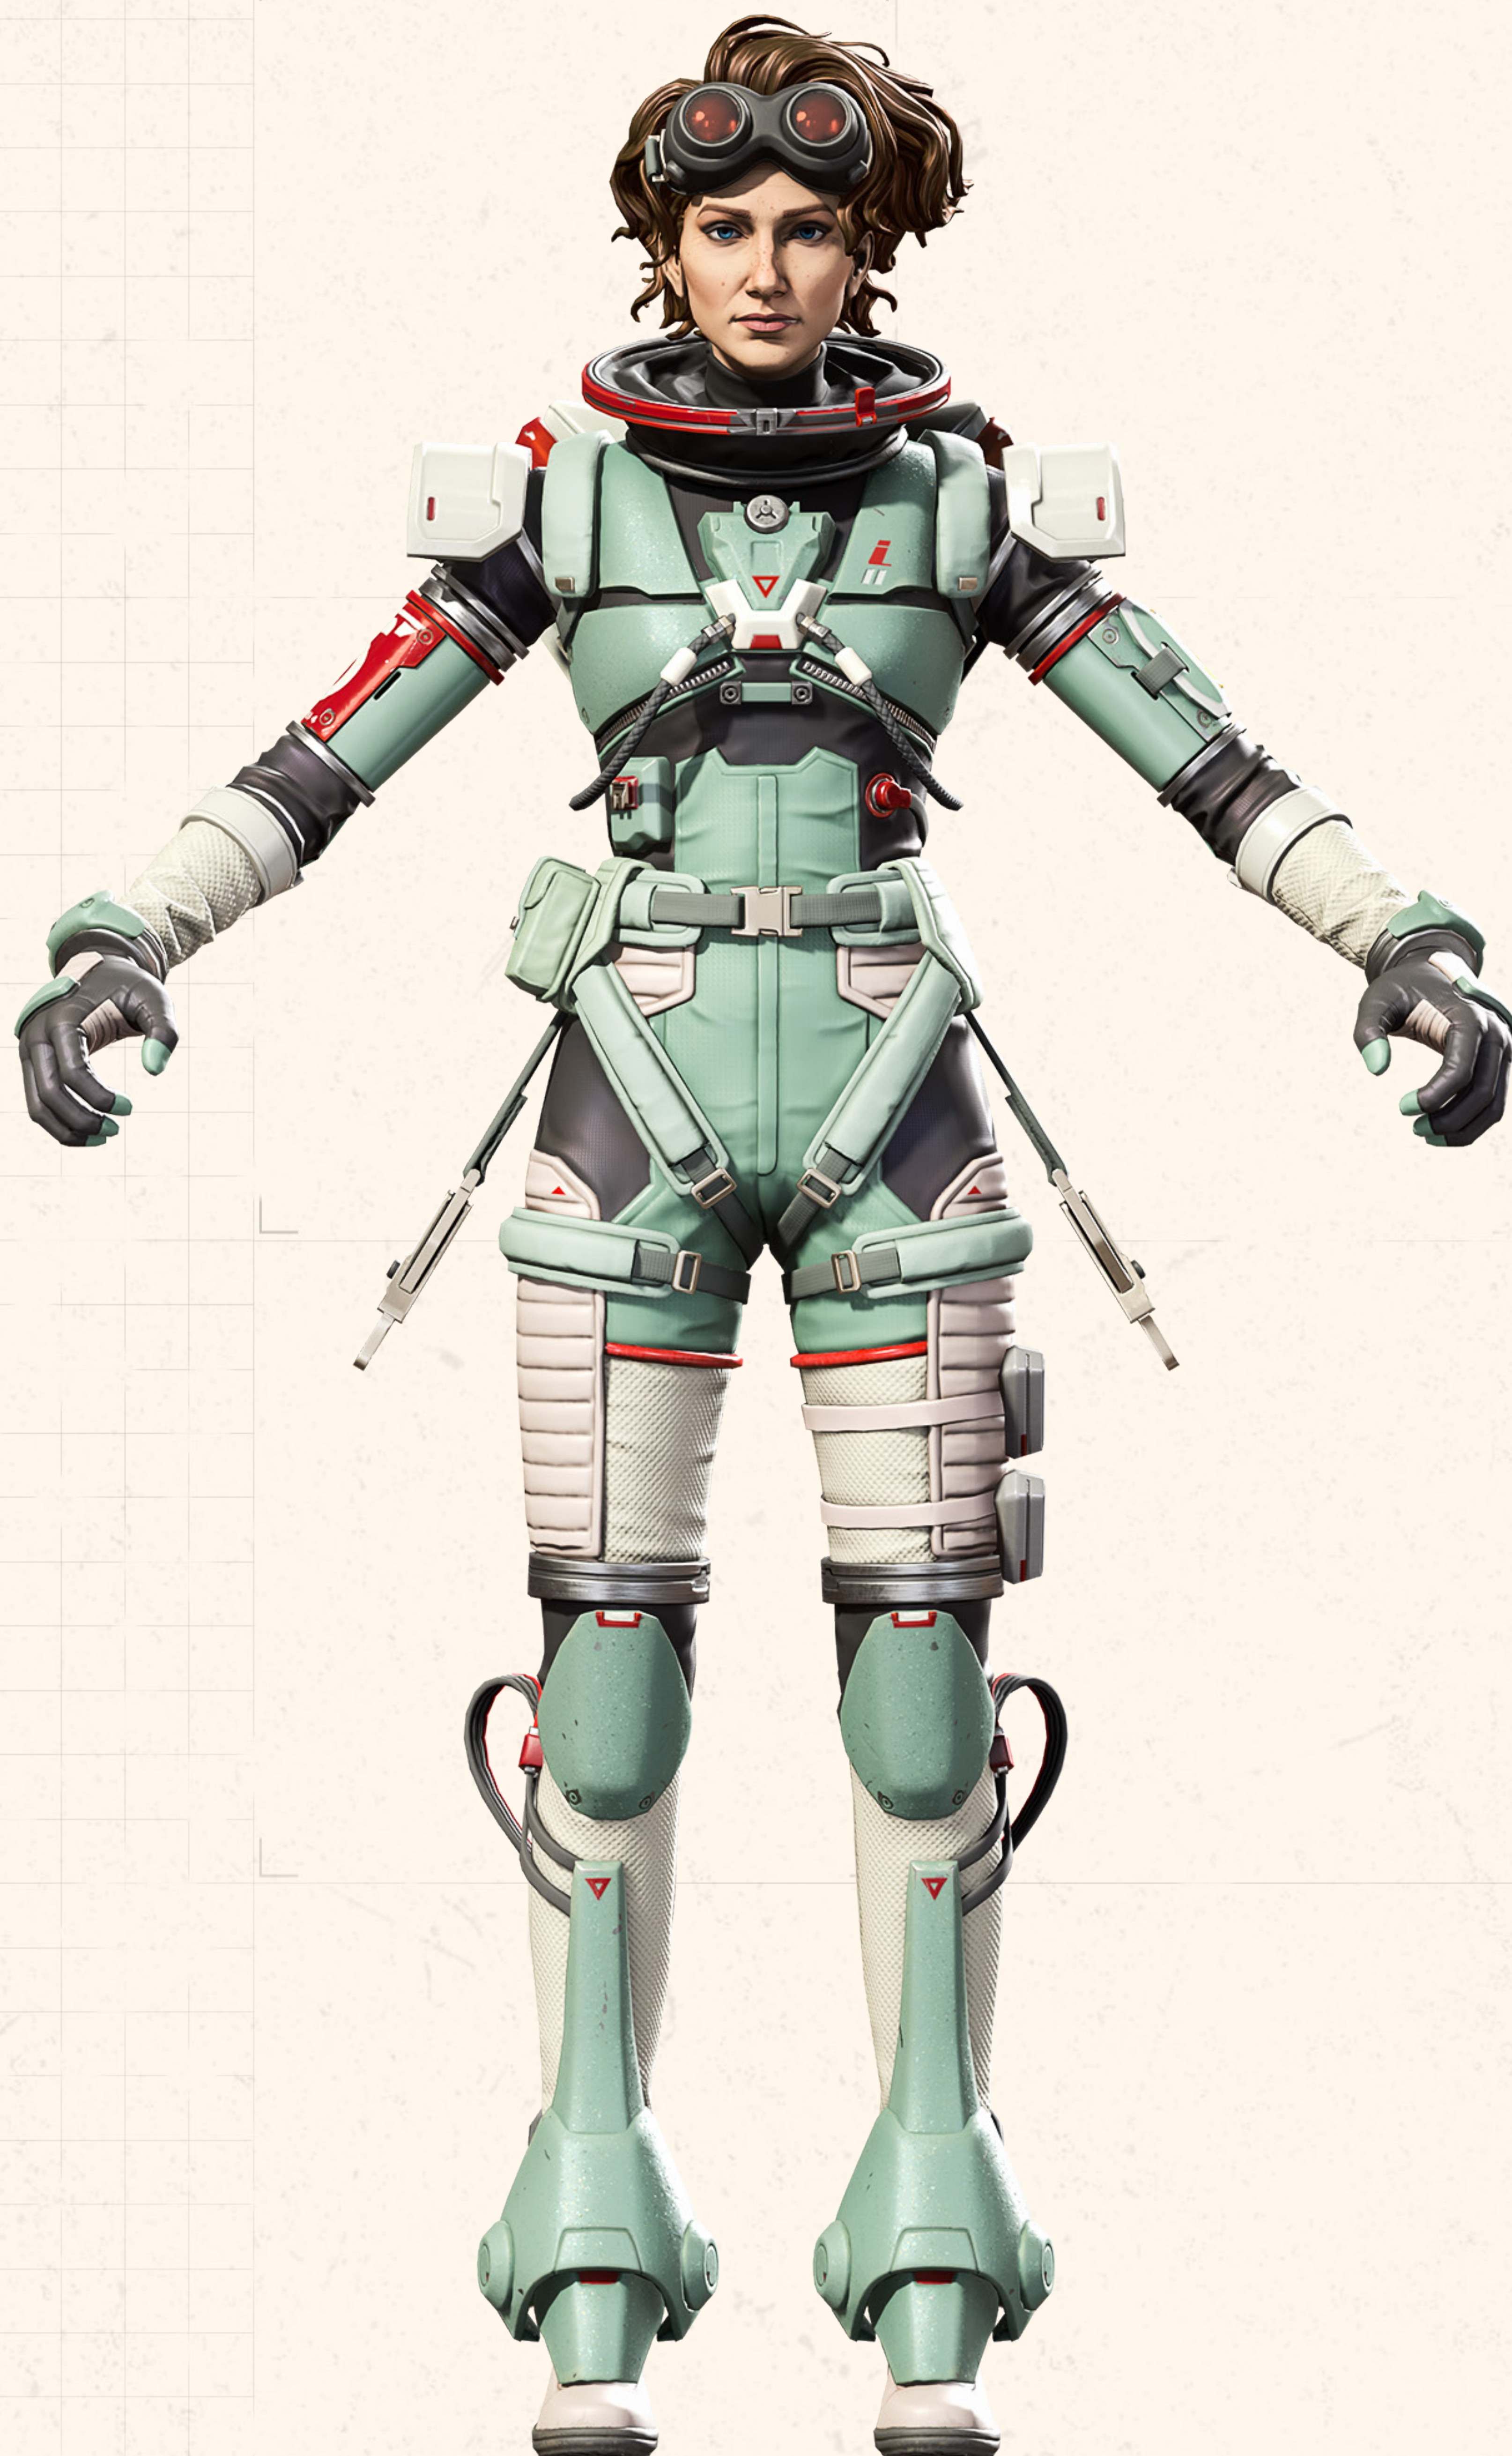

Mary promised her son Newton she'd return safe and sound. But Dr. Reid betrayed her, stealing the Branthium and sending her shuttle into the black hole's orbit. Using her wits, Mary modified her robotic vacuum companion N.E.W.T. to escape. But time moves differently on the outskirts of a black hole, and she was 87 years too late.

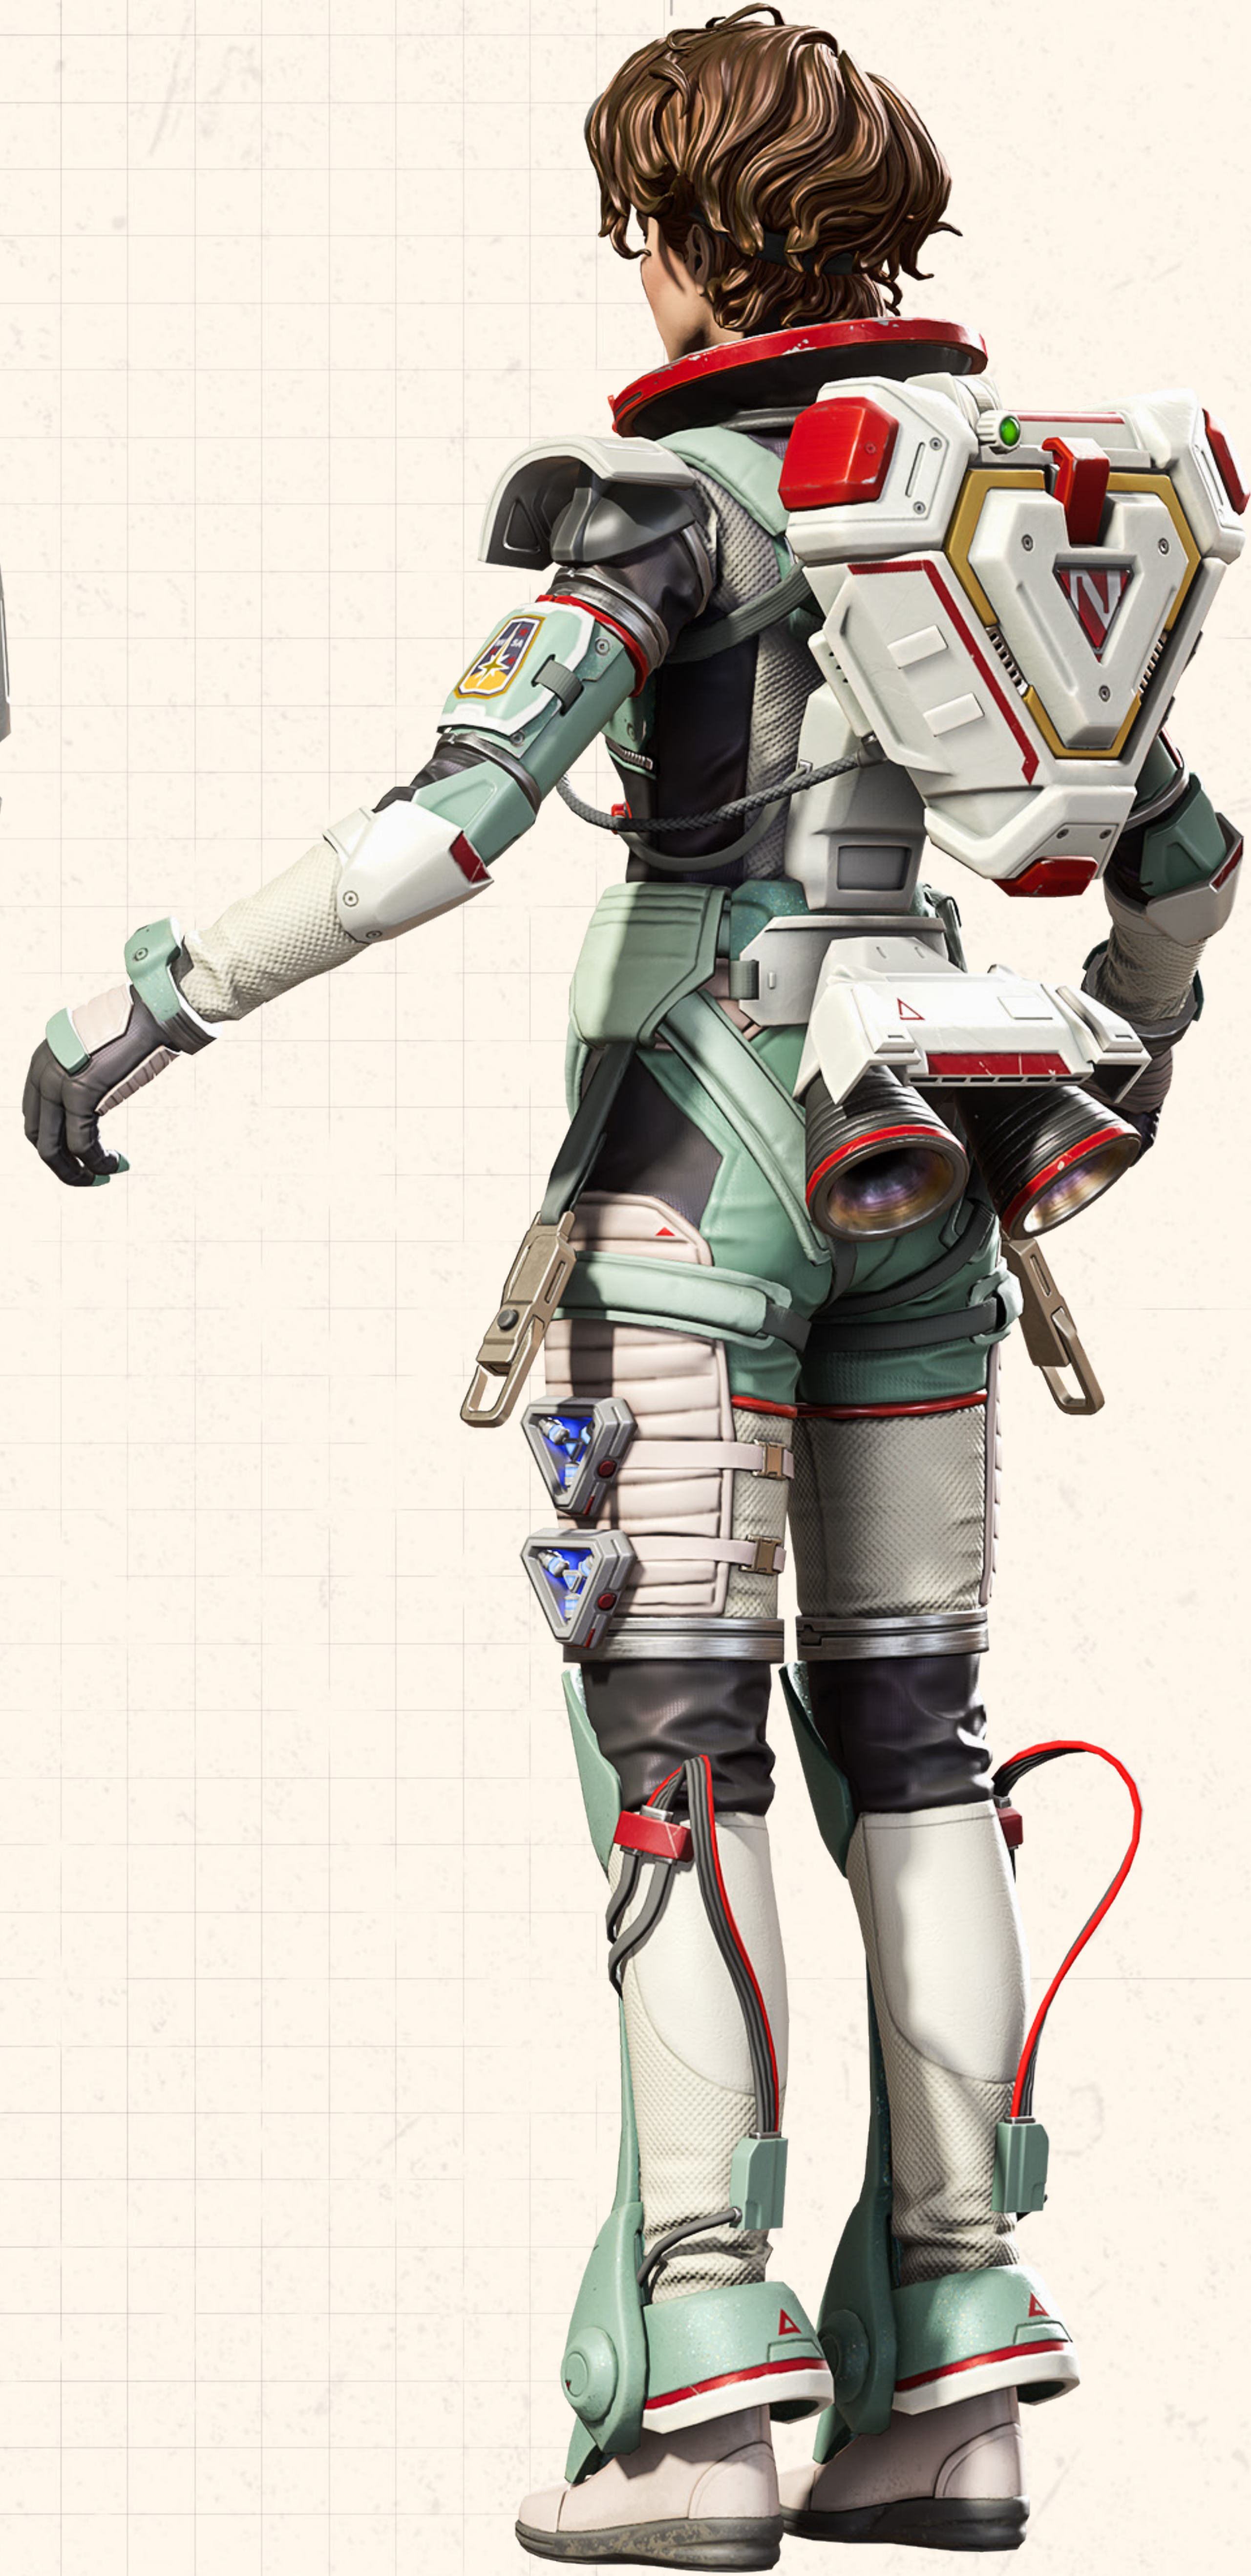

Now Mary is determined to fund her research to find a way to go back in time and be with her son. She joins the Apex Games as Horizon, master of gravity, just in time for the next season to debut on Olympus--where her old life once was and where she had promised to return.

! DID YOU KNOW?

Having just arrived in Olympus, Dr. Mary Sommers was "gifted" a robo-vacuum by a colleague who hoped it would help her find the time to balance her duties as a mother and a scientist. A week later, Mary had "found the time" to not only solve the colleague's lifelong project of containing a micro-singularity, but contain it in the robo-vacuum, too. Mary thanked the colleague for his concern, but with the most powerful robo-vacuum in the galaxy, time wouldn't be a problem. Hence, NEWT was born.
